

STRIKES DORMS, UNION, AND YMCA

The Christmas spirit is beginning to catch on all over campus as Christmas Holidays draw near.

The feeling is proving to be quite contagious. Christmas takes many forms, ranging from Nativity scenes to black Santas to updated versions of the story of the birth of the Christ child.

At far left is a decoration on the door of a room in one of the women's residence halls. Many students decorated their doors, thus adding to the feeling of Christmas in the air.

At left is a scene from the Annual Hanging of the Greens put on by the Union Special Events Committee last night. The program consisted of a one-act play, "To Jesus With Love" presented by the MSU Blackfriars and the Starkville Recreation Department, and music provided by the MSU Chorus.
