Walter Hester, member of the legislature from Adams County, called by phone. When he heard that Dr. Colvard was out of town, he asked to talk to his secretary. He asked that he be sent a list of names of the people who had requested by telegram or letter that Mississippi State be allowed to participate in integrated athletics of any kind.

Mr. Hester said that these people did not represent the majority of the people of the state, that Mississippi State was tearing down all that the legislature had tried to build up, and that we would have a hard time getting another cent from them.
